Sirius Minerals Foundation funding ensures Gallows Close Activity Programme can continue.

The Sirius Minerals Foundation, the charitable body supported by Anglo American's Woodsmith Project, have donated £5,000 to help Gallows Close Community Centre keep their hugely popular Young People's Activity Programme can continue running between September and December.

CEO Kimmie Avison explained: "This funding means we'll be able to extend the programme which offers provision to local youngsters to try street dance, Zumba, gymnastics, football and also attend youth clubs.

"Over 70% of the kids who attend the sessions are from low income families and wouldn't otherwise get access to classes like these, so this support from the Sirius Minerals Foundation is so crucial to ensuring they can stay healthy, active and also have access to qualified and expert coaching."
